

Three of Chicago's top police officials look on as the city's No. 1 cop, Supt. O. W. Wilson, cuts a cake commemorating his seventh year as head of the depart. The police commanders are, from left Deputy Superintendents James Conlisk, Pierce Fleming, and John Madl.

7th Anniversary

Happy Days, O.W.!

Supt. O. W. Wilson Thursday celebrated his seventh anniversary as head of the Chicago Police Department by sharing coffee and cake with hundreds of persons who stopped by to wish him well.

Wilson, who took over on March 2, 1960, grinned broadly at some of the "gifts" the visitors left.

They included a 39-cent loving cup inscribed with the words "The World's Best Boss"; a large wooden key for the police lockup; a Keystone Cop-type helmet and a sledgehammer.

He said the latter was for his chauffeur to use in pounding dents from his official auto, which has been involved in a few minor incidents.
