Ludendorff Order Reveals German Anxiety Over Waning Man Power.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 17.—[By the Associated Press.]—An order signed "Ludendorff" recently captured on the battlefield discloses the anxiety of the Germans over the heavy losses they sustained in the latter part of June and early in July. The order, dated July 6, refers to "repeated attacks by the enemy during recent days," and says:

"Unfortunately a great number of prisoners were lost in those affairs which shows that our occupation of the first lines is still too dense in defense and the depth of the advanced zone is insufficient." The document makes a significant reference to the relations between the depth of the advanced zone and the weakness of artillery.

"The weaker the artillery is," the document says, "and the worse the organization of a position is, the deeper should be the advanced zone."

Another paragraph refers to the lack of men for certain operations, as follows: "The fear that the enemy might make us retire several kilometers is absolutely unjustified, because they have as few men as we have available for such attacks."
