

FOR THE RECORD

BUILDING SAFE NEIGHBORHOODS
IN CHICAGO

A Year of Progress and a Call to Action

QUARTERLY UPDATE

CHICAGO POLICE DEPARTMENT

Not Just the Stats

I'm proud to announce that crime is down again for the ninth year in a row. In 2000, criminal incidents dropped by nearly five percent throughout the City.

Significant progress has been made in many of our neighborhoods where crime has historically been the highest. Reductions have been experienced in twenty of our twenty-five police districts.

But the important news is not just in the numbers.

As always, my focus is directed toward the future and how the Chicago Police Department can balance effective crime control strategies with an equal appreciation of how citizens are treated.

Therefore in 2001, I will not gauge the Departments success based on a reduction of crime alone. My barometer for success will also be based on our ability to meet the communitys expectations to improve communication, respect, accountability, freedom from fear, and trust.

We need your help. To continue to reduce crime while earning your trust, we must continue to strengthen our partnership. I know that we work best when we work together.

Terry G. Hillard
Superintendent of Police

“20 out of 25 Districts showed a decrease in index crimes in year 2000.”
