

CHICAGO POLICE DEPARTMENT

Jody P. Weis, Superintendent of Police

VOLUME 8

26 November 2008

NUMBER 13

As all of you know, the Department's budget for 2009 contains several structural changes, including the addition of several key positions, the elimination of other positions and the consolidation of several functions. These changes are intended to more closely align the structure of the Department with its crime fighting strategy as well as to streamline operations.

With the recent passage of our budget by the City Council, I am pleased to announce that we are able to begin to implement the changes within the Department, including the promotion and movement of several key members of the Command Staff.

The following individuals will assume the noted positions:

There continues to be too many guns on the streets, and gang-members are becoming more brazen, adopting new tactics and strategies. As a Department, we must be flexible and adaptive too. The above changes include nine promotions, including three new members of the Command Staff, and eight lateral moves. The above individuals represent a wealth of experience and expertise, across a diverse group of leaders. I am confident that the above changes will contribute to our ability to effectively pursue the gangs, guns and drugs that affect our City.

For a better sense of the new organization of the Department, please go to the Department's Intranet. Organizational charts are available under "2009 CPD Org Chart (NEW!)."

Thank you, be safe, and remember to take care of each other.
